We at the Feminist Majority Foundation (FMF) think U.S. foreign policies should promote women’s rights as a central feature of U.S. global engagement and development assistance.

This video, "The Global Majority...Again", created by FMF Board Member Lorraine Sheinberg explores how current U.S. foreign policy fosters conditions that increase global poverty and hunger, endangers the health of the people in the developing nations, and contributes to the global degradation of the environment.

Fill out the form below to order a copy of "The Global Majority...Again" for your campus women's studies department, women's center, political science department, or international affairs program, and use it to mobilize your campus community for a better world!
